An Introduction

www.clicklaw.bc.ca is a program of Courthouse Libraries BC

-Quick overview: Clicklaw is a website, and it is essentially a database of legal resources and services for the everyday person. It's a way to find answers to everyday legal problems, but specifically for people in B.C. It's a good starting point if you're trying to find out what a legal issue is, or to find a person that can help.

- A website that aggregates plain language legal information and services for British Columbians

- Collaboratively developed, plain language legal publications that are published online in a familiar Wiki format

- Helps public libraries provide current legal information by providing assistance with developing legal collections

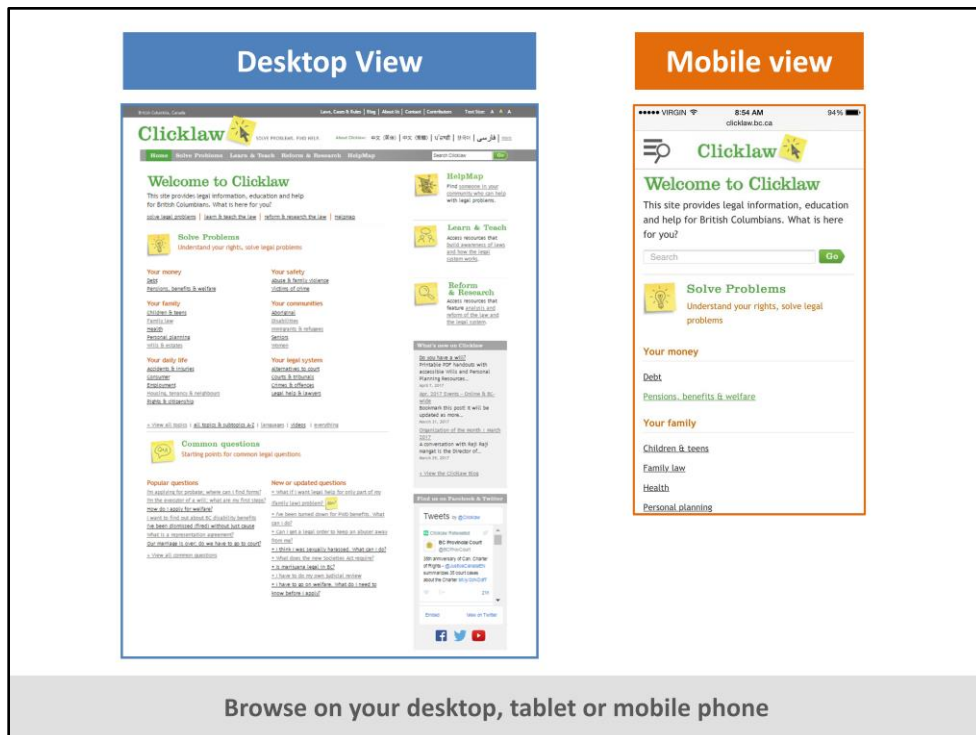

- A library with 29 branches to help clients find and use legal information

Courthouse Libraries BC provides four (4) programs that help the public Clicklaw is just one piece of the resources that Courthouse Libraries BC (CLBC) provides for the public. We'll go through these in more detail, but just to give you an overview...

- Clicklaw itself isn't a publisher of content. You'll search for something—like “adoption”, for example—then get a search result of resources and services that relate to the topic, but they'll be published by a contributor organization. There are dozens of different trusted organizations in BC, with different types of content expertise and service offerings, that add their resources to Clicklaw.
- These are some examples.

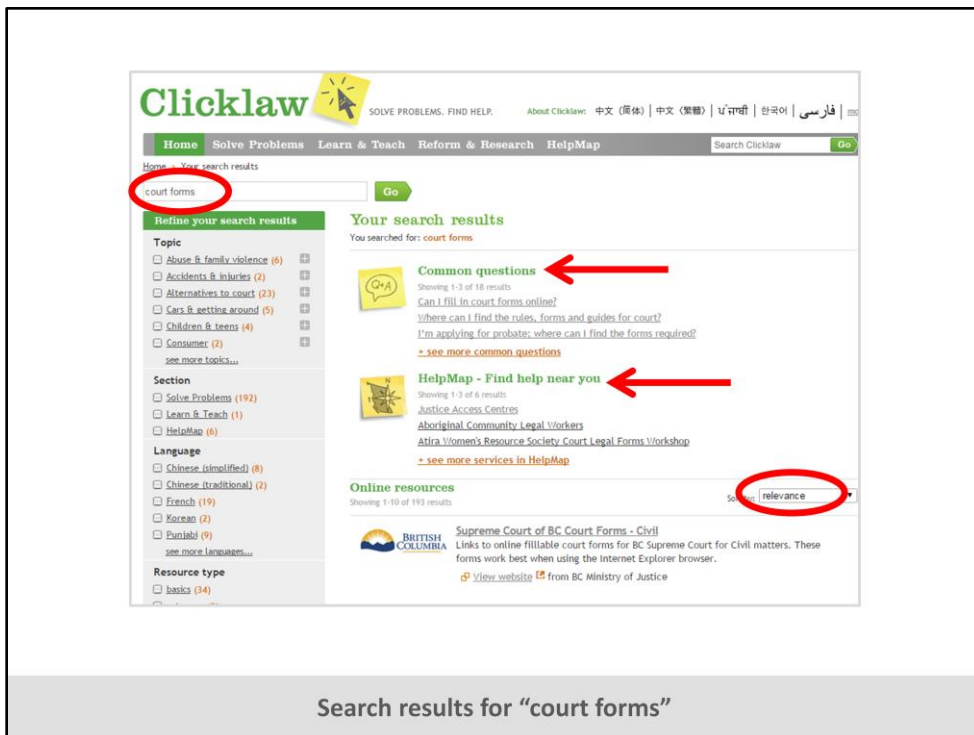

-You can view the Clicklaw website on your computer, or mobile phone – anywhere, anytime.

-We'll be using the desktop version of the site to show examples in the PowerPoint, but please feel free to check it out on your phone! Use the hamburger menu icon in the top left of the screen to open the navigation.

-On the desktop site, use the search bar on the top right, or find resources and services by clicking on the topics on the front page.

-The Clicklaw topics, or “taxonomy/terminology” is developed collaboratively by contributors. It's language that the public would use to describe their legal issue, rather than legal terminology that a lawyer would use.

-The next slide shows what you see if you search for “court forms”.

-Here is a screenshot of the search results for “court forms”.

-First you’ll see “Common Questions”. These FAQs are added to as Courthouse Libraries BC frontline staff get asked questions repeatedly about a particular topic. Sometimes new questions are added on the suggestion of a contributor organization. All questions are written in easy to understand, plain language and direct people to good starting places. These have been narrowed down to those that relate to “court forms” – what was entered into the search bar. Let Clicklaw know if you have any suggestions for new questions to add. (Contact info at end of slide)

-You’ll also see HelpMap Services. These are clinics, phone lines, workshops, and other services where your client can talk to a real live person about their issue. You can search the HelpMap on its own, but because we’ve searched for “court forms”, you’ll see only results that relate to that.

-You can click on both the headings and the +see more links to see the full list of related results.

-Last but not least, there is a new feature that lets you sort resource results by last reviewed date. You can see it in the drop down, along with methods to sort results by most viewed, relevance, and alphabetical order.

clicklaw.bc.ca/helpmap: Search by topic and/or location

- On the previous slide, you saw HelpMap services as part of a search results page.
- You can also search the HelpMap directly if you know you are looking for a help service, by clicking on HelpMap in the header or by navigating directly to clicklaw.bc.ca/helpmap.
- Search the HelpMap directly by using a keyword (e.g. “court forms”) as well as your location (if you type in a city name, the results will only include physical locations in the city/town you search, as well as BC-wide telephone or online services – so by putting in Vancouver, I’ll only get services with physical locations in Vancouver, or those that are offered over the phone or online.)
- Or, you can search by a broader topic. Say you want help with finding out about the PWD benefit, you might click on “Disabilities” under “Your communities” OR, “Pensions, benefits & welfare” under “Your money”.

HelpMap listings include helplines, clinics, court form workshops, and more

-Here's an example of a service listing you can find on the Clicklaw HelpMap. Family LawLINE is a BC-wide helpline service run by Legal Services Society, where lawyers give legal advice about family law issues like parenting time, guardianship and custody, child support, spousal support, and more. There is language support provided in numerous languages, and financial qualifications apply.

The screenshot shows the Clicklaw website interface. At the top, there's a navigation bar with links like 'Laws, Cases & Rules', 'Blog', 'About Us', 'Contact', and 'Contributors'. The main header features the Clicklaw logo and a search bar. Below the header, a navigation menu includes 'Home', 'Solve Problems', 'Learn & Teach', 'Reform & Research', and 'HelpMap'. A red arrow points to the 'Refine your search results' sidebar on the left. This sidebar contains a list of topics with checkboxes and counts, such as 'Aboriginal (35)', 'Adoption & birth (25)', 'Child protection/removal (71)', 'Child support (119)', 'Custody & access/parenting (126)', 'Dealing with family breakup (58)', 'Divorce & separation (123)', 'Family agreements (36)', 'Grandparents & other relatives (26)', 'Marriage & common-law relationships (59)', 'Name change (11)', 'Property & debt at family breakup (51)', 'Spousal support (104)', 'Gay, lesbian, trans & sexual (3)', and 'Health (2)'. The 'Family law (376)' option is selected. The main content area, titled 'Your search results', shows 'Common questions' and 'HelpMap - Find help near you'. Below this, there are 'Online resources' including 'Separation and Separation Agreements' and 'How to do your own undefended (uncontested) divorce (in British Columbia)'. At the bottom of the page, a grey bar contains the text 'Refine your search results'.

-Sometimes your search might turn up many more results than you were looking for. On most search result pages you will see a “Refine” column to the left (this feature is not available on mobile). This will let you further narrow down your search results. You can select subtopics, languages, multiple topics, and more (e.g. You might select both “Alternatives to court” and “Family Law”, for example, if you were looking for family law mediation resources).

- Saturday, April 1 (2:00-5:00pm): West Coast LEAF presents Why Your Vote Counts: Women's Equality and the BC Provincial Election at SFU Woodward's, David Mowafaghian World Arts Centre at 149 West Hastings St, Vancouver

A community-driven event about how we can achieve women's equality in BC. Join the Single Mothers' Alliance BC for an all-candidates debate and keynote speakers on women's rights in BC. Ahead of the May 9 provincial general election, learn about BC political party platforms on gender equality and discuss the issues that matter to you in community roundtables. The event will end with a networking reception for all attendees.
- April 2-10 (Various Dates): Pacific Legal Education Outreach Society (PLEO) presents Societies Act Transition Workshops, in Kaslo, Nanaimo and Revelstoke.

The BC Society Act, which provides the rules for governance and incorporation of non-profits, officially proclaimed important changes on November 28, 2016. There will be a two year transition period by which time all societies in BC will have to make the switch to the new Act. This workshop will provide the information on the bylaw and policy changes necessary for your organization to effectively make the transition when the new Act is proclaimed.

Tickets are $50, or free for workshops in the Kootenays (Kaslo & Revelstoke) due to the funding and support of Columbia Basin Trust.

Stay informed with what's new: blog.clicklaw.bc.ca

- How do you stay updated with legal info when there's so much new and updated info all the time? Everyone relies on word of mouth. One great and easy way is to sign up for the Clicklaw blog mailing list.
- The blog is growing and subscribed to by legal intermediaries, lawyers, and community workers around the province as well as journalists.
- If you subscribe, you will get notified about events, webinar and in-person training opportunities, new resources and services, and more!

-You can subscribe on your mobile phone right now.

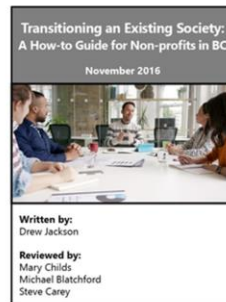

- 1) Click on the Menu Icon on the top right
- 2) Click Subscribe.
- 3) Enter your email and hit Subscribe.

-Clicklaw is also on Facebook and Twitter as @Clicklaw, so if you're active on either platform, please follow and like away!

-If you're dealing with a family law issue, workplace bullying and harassment, being an executor, or more, don't forget to check out the Clicklaw Wikibooks (you can get to them through the footer on the Clicklaw website, and each Wikibook title is listed as a resource on Clicklaw).

-To explain the Wikibooks...If Clicklaw is akin to Google for BC public legal information (e.g. a way to search a directory of different legal resources and services in BC), the Clicklaw Wikibooks is the wikipedia counterpart. It contains "wikibooks" or groupings of wiki pages by topic. Its most popular title is JP Boyd on Family Law, which is a practical, in-depth, plain-language manual of family law and divorce law in British Columbia.

wiki.clicklaw.bc.ca continually adds new titles

- The Clicklaw Wikibooks platform is continually being added to.
- You can see on our screen a couple of our most recent additions. Since November 28, 2016, over 27,000 non-profit societies in BC have 2 years to transition to the new Societies Act. We've added handy FAQs from Law for Non Profits, and a Transition How-to Guide to help non profits understand the requirements.
- How to hear about when these new titles launch? Subscribe to the Clicklaw blog!
